NEW SCHOOL LAW EXPLAINED

Frankfort, Ky., July 3.—In answer to questions concerning the new school law which was passed by the last legislature, Prof. J. G. Crabbe, superintendent of public instruction, sent out circular letters to all the county school superintendents in Kentucky. The circular letter answers questions which have been asked the educational department, and the answers, which were prepared by Prof. Crabbe after consultation with Mames Breathitt, Attorney General, will give the people torney General, will give the people of the State generally a better idea of what the law is and how it will work. The circular letter is as fol-

Kentucky Department of Educa Kentucky Department of Educa-tion, J. G. Crabbe, State Superin-tendent, Frankfort, Ky., June 24.— Dear County Superintendent: A bulletin giving detailed information and suggestions concerning the op-eration of the new "county school district law" will shortly be issued. Numerous inoutires and suggestions Numerous inquiries and suggestions about House bill No. 141 have reached this department and will have most careful consideration. Today this circular may be helpful to officers for immediate needs.

First—The county is the unit. The subdivide each educational division into school subdistricts. Boundaries are to be based on white children, but whenever these boundaries are fixed by these officers above named the lines of the white and colored districts shall coincide.

Third—Paragraph 2 above indicates that the officers named are the absolute authority to fix and change the educational division. But Section 10 of the new law directs that the County Board of Education shall have full power to establish new school subdistricts and to change the boundaries of school subdistricts undivided the subdistricts and to change the senson subdistricts and to change the boundaries of school subdistricts. The framers of the act, however, had no intention of ultra-rigid boundaries. A wise provision of the act, see section 17 carefully, has reference to consolidation of school subdistricts. Two or more white act, see section 17 carefully, has reference to consolidation of school subdistricts. Two or more white subdistricts may unite for the needs of the white children; vice versa, several subdistricts may unite for the needs of the colored children. These are called "consolidated schools," Section 17 is to the superintendent, who is a real statesman, a sufficient "safety valve." Look out for the needs of the schools, not for the needs friction. Fourth—About numbering education divisions and subdistricts: For the fature convenience number the educational divisions and the school subdistricts in the following manner: Beginning in educational division. No. 1, with Cedar Valley subdistrict No. 1, Oak Hill subdistrict No. 2 and so on through the whole number of subdistricts in this division. Then educational division No. 2, with Collett subdistrict No. 1, Pow-

Fifth—The question is asked: is it possible to make Lebanon (for example) an educational division by itself? Refer to the new law (Bulleton No. 3), Section 2, which says: "The county judge, the county superintendent of schools and the perintendent of schools county attorney shall then subdivide each of the said educational divis-ions into school subdistricts follow-ing as nearly as practicable the boundaries of existing school dis-trict for white children." THE ASS'N COMMITTEE

Also Holds Monthly Session and a Big Crowd Will Be in Town.

Big preparations are being made of for the Equity Rally at the Court House next Monday. Some doubt is expressed as to the real purpose of the meeting. The Equity Society is weak in this county, as nearly all of the farmers belong to the Planters Protective Association. Last year the American Society of Equity split over the defeat of J. A. Everett for national chairman and the Everett followers organized a new Society known as the Farmers' Union, which at once began organizing vigorously in the unoccupied territory of the Purchase counties, trying to pool not only tobacco-crops but other crops as well. C. M. Bartrying to pool not only tonaccocrops but other crops as well. C. M. Bar-nett is the present national chair-man of the original American So-ciety of Equity, while to make things more confusing the present State chairman of the new Farmers' Un-lon is R. L. Barnett. Both of these ion is R. L. Barnett. Both of these organizations are more or less rivals of the Tobacco Association and the members of the organization are looking with more or less disfavor upon the activity being displayed in association territory just at the time when the three years' pledges are about to expire.

Three striking and powerful discussions of great questions make the July McClure's an especially important number. Samuel Hopkins. Adams treats, in the opening article, of the appalling loss of life due to the lack of sane methods for the protection of the health of the American public. Judge McKenzie Cleland in a statement of his judicial experience in Chicago, shows the extraordinary success of a new plan for dealing with city criminals, which he inaugurated in that city. And Will C. Barnes gives a fresh and vigorous character sketch of Gifford Pinchot, and his fight to preserve one of our chief national assets. Ellen Terry continues her charming record of her American impressions, and the reminiscences of Carl Scherz picture the final downfall of President Johnson. The faction includes "The Heritage of Lam," a haunting tragedy of military life in the Philippines, and "The Singer's Heart," an appealing story of stage life by Harris Murton Lyon. Josephine Deaham Baccon contributes one of her sketches to child life, and Joseph Blethen tells a novel and striking Indian story, of a new type. Mary Stewart Cutting's notable novel, "The Wayfarera," is concluded in this number.

CURIOUS PROBLEMS.

You Think That You Could Count Up to a Trillion?

One persons openly manifest an aversion to mathematics., Can they be censured when such problems as these are presented to view?

One little statement that set many people to thinking about their limitations first appeared in a publication some twenty-five years ago. It simply stated, "You cannot count a trillion." Many tried it, but all gave up before counting very long. Supposing you counted without stopping at the rate of 200 every minute of the day and night, how long would it take? You could count 12,000 an hour, 288,000 in a day, 105,192,000 in a year of 365¼ days. Since a billion is at housand million, it is a simple matter to see that it would take nearly ten years to reach that sum, and since a trillion is a thousand billion it does not require a great stretch of the imagination to see that we could never reach that sum, and since a trillion is a thousand billion it does not require a great stretch of the imagination to see that we could never reach that sum and since a trillion is a thousand billion it does not require a great stretch of the imagination to see that we could never reach that sum and since a trillion is a thousand billion it does not require a great stretch of the imagination to see that we could never reach that she mount unless we had in the neighborhood of 10,000 years to devote to the task.

A woman of social ambitions once remarked to an acquaintanee that she had eighteen intimate friends whom she wished to have to disnore, but as her table seated only eight she could have only six guests at a time. It was suggested that she invite them in rotation, changing the gueste until each had been to dinner with all of the others. At the first dinner she amounced her plan, and one of the guests asked if when the could have to give before she had made the complete rotation. When he learned that she thought twenty or thirty dinners would answer he laughed, took a pencil from his poket and after liguring a few gueste until each had been to dinner, but she would have to give before she had made Tress and Lightning.

There is a popular belief that certain trees are less likely than others to be struck by lightning and that during a thunderstorm it is quite safe to stand under a beech, for example, while the danger under a resinous tree or an oak is respectively fifteen or twenty times greater. This is disputed by Dr. A. W. Borthwick in "Notes of the Royal Botanical Garden of Edinburgh." The doctor says that no tree is immune, since lightning will select one species quite as readily as another and the beech as readily as another and the beech as readily autie as frequently as any other species. Apparently the taller trees in a neighborhood are the ones most likely to be struck. Contrary to what is believed by some people, the cells are not "ruptured or torn by the formation of steam, as might happen if the heating by the electric current was very great. The cells collapse and shrink up, but are never torn." The root system does not seem to be lever damaged by lightning.

Sophy of Kravonia.

In vain will the readers of this tale of romantic love and brillent daring search the maps of the world for the pictureague land of Kravonia, wherein lovely, fascinating Sophy and her mysterious Red Star played their parts. This much we may tell him before he embarks on his woyage to Kravonia. But we may easure him that when he reluctantly parts with Sophy, sometime scullery maid of Morpingham, Essex, England, later spiritualistic medium of Parts, Pranes, and still later of high rank in Slavna and Volsent, in Kravonia, the country of her adoption will be to him, like Zenda and Graushak, more real than are many of the samtler, actual kingdoms of the earth. Sad and traje in some of its aspects is the love story of Sophy of Kravonia, but its pathe is so lightened by devoted loyally, hardy bravery and tender, self sacrificing affection that at the end the reader will surely feel its felling has not been unworthy of the master hand of its famous chronicler.
